THE TIMES.

H. C. CLEMENT, EDITOR.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 3, 1906.

The old year witnessed new efforts on the part of the farmers to guard against injustice in life's struggle, on the part of education to improve their methods of instruction, on the part of bankers to increase their facilities for serving the people and on the part of the people at large to improve their homes, their farms, their business houses and their churches. The summertime was peerless and the fall that followed a gem of the first water. Good-bye old friend, though dead still to memory dear—"The King is dead! Long live the King."—so shouted the Frenchmen and so we catch up the refrain as the old year dies and the new is born. And what of 1906? We cannot lift the veil, and would not if we could, but of this we are assured "He that get-eth wisdom loveth his own soul, he that keepeth understanding shall find good." Let us go forth then to meet the shadowy future with manly heart and without fears.

Our New Year's wish for all the readers of the TIMES is "that they may prosper and be in health even as their souls prosper."

We have buried a dear friend in the old yea 1905, but it has "finished it's course and was ready to be offered up." It's memory will be precious so long as memory holds it's seat, for it brought us more of sunshine than storm, more of singing than sighing, more of peace than of pain, more of rest than of unrest, more of flowers than of thorns, more of pleasure than of disease, more of victory than of defeat and more of friends than of foes. To the country it brought general prosperity, to the Commonwealth a signal of political deliverance, to the farmers good prices, to the laborer constant employment and to the large majority of our people the precious boon of good health.

The one time fatal fever which threatened our brethren of the far South was met on the threshold and slain of much of it's wanted tenor, and all Dixie breathes freer to know that the pestilence that once walked in the darkness and wasted at noonday has crossed lances with advancing science and been so seriously crippled in it's first encounter that it may not return to fight again.

And now for the meeting of the Legislature, Governor Montague's farewell message, and then the inaugural, after which the first message from Governor Swanson. The spring campaign will soon follow and then the Congressional entries will all be made.

Congress did nothing before the holidays, we are told, on the contrary it devoted $11,000,000 of people's hard-earned money's perliminary to actual work on a canal which they could very well do without any how, at least until the public highways of the country were first put into decent order.

If Russia isn't tottering to it's downfall all signs are misleading—the people so long oppressed, degraded and allowed to grow up in ignorance have been driven to extreme madness and neither promises nor persuasion avail to control them. Czar and Grand Dukes alike must feel how vain is the help of man after all. The world awaits the next with intense interest.

We are not in possession of the facts in the case of young Christie son of Dr. G. C. Christie of Richmond, but if they justify the recent action of the Black-burg Board in dismissing him, we are glad to know that it and the college to stand by its position regardless of whose son they were dealing with. The Board's reply will probably give you some idea of college life.

The election of Mr. Pace as treasurer of Richmond is a distinct notice to the public that the better and more substantial class of voters can a ways control when they get together. A small "bosses" of National reputation last fall, and let us hope the end day of "ring rule" is at hand. small pistol, fired only blank last breath. We feared contained just enough of it for minister said make us dread to start the class congratulate Reinged the pistol, and Virginia loves M the girl's head.

Appomattox in a Social Whirl.

The week has been given up to social gatherings and the homes of the village have presented gay and happy scenes.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. W. Hancock entertained a few friends Monday evening in old Virginia style at luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Taylor gave an elaborate party at their home on Wednesday evening. The decorations were pretty and the menue unsurpassed. Mrs. Taylor is a charming hostess and knows how to entertain

Mr. and Mrs. J. Randolph Caldwell entertained a large company of young people at their hospitable home near the village Thursday night. The house was elaborately decorated. Music and games were plentiful, and Miss Bailey, of Richmond, who was a guest at this home, and who is a dramatic elocutionist, entertained the crowd with several of her humorous recitations.

At the Baptist parsonage, Rev and Mrs. Hugh Smith entertained a merry party of young people Friday evening.

The Christmas tree at Memorial Church was a great success and the church was taxed to hold the crowd who came to hear and witness the interesting exercises. The children were in a happy mood and old Santa and Mrs. Santa were stars. Confections and presents were given all the scholars. The little tots had a fine evening of enjoyment and those who attended enjoyed the exercises.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E Gills gave the little folks a big supper Friday evening and many young hearts were given and received.

The young men of the village gave a swell dance at Hotel Atwood Monday and Tuesday nights Lynchburg music was used and a choice lot ladies and gentlemen from Lynchburg Roanoke and Wes Virginia attended. It was one of the big occasions of the holiday season.

Mrs. J. R. Atwood entertained Wednesday evening.

Mrs. G. A. Coleman gave the little folks a very enjovable party at her new home near the village Saturday evening.

On Monday night, the 1st, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Hancock threw open their doors to quit a crowd and entertained at a New Year's party.

Miss Carrie Hunter entertained a few of her friends at her home Monday night.

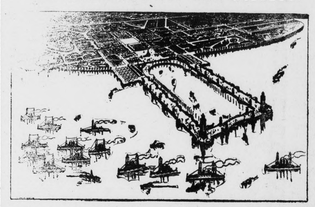
JAMESTOWN EXPOSITION



BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF THE EXPOSITION GROUNDS

A prominent part of the message which President Roosevelt sent to the fifty-ninth Congress of the United States, which has just convened in Washington, was devoted to the Jamestown Tercentennial. The President said: "I heartily commend to your favorable consideration the tercentennial celebration of the settlement at Jamestown, Va. Appreciating the desirability of such commemoration, the Congress passed an act, March 3, 1905, authorizing in the year 1907, on and near the waters of Hampton Roads, in the State of Virginia, an international naval, marine and military celebration in honor of said event. By authority vested in me by this act, I have made proclamation of said celebration, and have issued in conformity with its instructions, invitations to all the nations of the earth to participate by sending their naval vessels and such military organizations as may be practicable.

"This celebration would fail of its purpose unless it were enduring in its results and commensurate with the event to be celebrated.

The Jamestown Exposition was organized by Virginians, under authority granted by the State Legislature. The management has worked consistently and zealously to produce a celebration in every respect worthy of the State and the event to be celebrated.

The selection of the site for the exposition was mainly determined because the adjoining places possessed certain advantages which no other vicinity afforded.

On the shores of Hampton Roads and on high and dry ground, the exposition's structures will be reared and the tremendous expanse of harbor-way, stretching for miles before the sight, give an opportunity for a naval celebration on a protected sheet of water, capable of accommodating practically every warship afloat.

Hampton Roads has an area of 160 square miles, most of which is channel-way, and at any part offers safe anchorage.

Nothing remains of the original settlement except the ruins of the old church tower. The neck of land which connected Jamestown with the main country has been swept away by the storms of the centuries. Much of the island has been eroded by the on-rush of the mighty James, which pours its restless torrent of water ceaselessly against the land; however, the elements have been unable to destroy the sentiment which attaches to it as a settlement. It was the first colony of English speaking people in America, from which proceeded the others, and Virginia's effort now to celebrate this great event is, in the language of Hon. T. B. Dunn, of Rochester, N. Y., the chief commissioner for that State for the Jamestown Exposition, "merely the mother of States calling her children home."

The people living around Hampton Roads have subscribed more than a million dollars to make this enterprise successful, and the State of Virginia has already appropriated $200,000 in aid thereof. Sixteen States of the Union have agreed to participate, most of them have subscribed various amounts, ranging from $25,000 to $150,0000, the latter amount having been appropriated by New York.

Canada will have an exposition worthy of her great history and her present. It will be historical in construction, detail, equipment and features. The view of the site, which is shown herewith, gives a partial idea of what will appear on Hampton Roads in 1907.

A splendid colonial city will occupy an area of about three-quarters of a square mile. Along the shore will be a magnificent driveway securely bulkheaded, with a concrete protecting wall, and, jutting from the shore, two immense piers, sixteen hundred feet long and two hundred feet wide, connected at the end with an eight hundred foot pier of same width will form a safe and commodious water basin or harbor for the protection of small craft and for the conduct of aquatic sports, such as swimming, water polo, etc.

A Before these piers the ships of all nations will ride at anchor. The President has already issued his proclamation, inviting the foreign governments to send to the Exposition representatives of their fleets and detachments of their soldiery. The governments have already signified their intention of participating—England and France.

It is understood informally that Japan will send Admiral Togo as great Northern Pacific squadron. It is practically certain that every of the important nations of the world will be represented at the Exposition by ships, but with at least one regiment of their choicest men, already endorsed by the Congress of the United States, and by the Legislatures of sixteen States since the action of the Congress, will receive such additional aid at your hands as will make it worthy of the great event it is intended to celebrate, and thereby enable the government of the United States to make provision for the exhibition of its own resources, and likewise to make our people who have undertaken the work of such a celebration to render suitable and proper entertainment and instruction in the historic spot of our country for all who may visit the exposition and to whom we have tendered our hospitality."

Mr. Roosevelt declares that the celebration "would fail of its full purpose, unless it were enduring in its results and commensurate with the event to be celebrated."

Results from Virginia-Carolina Fertilizers
Compare the Crops

If you want to see dollars grow, feed your fields with "Virginia-Carolina" fertilizers. They will increase your yields per acre, and more than keep down the cost of production, even if you use fewer loads less labor.

Ten thousands of strong testimonials, some of which are given in our pamphlet "Crops and How to Grow Them." Of course, that would be to his interest—sick yours.
